TREGUA CASE.

Hearing Begun in the Supreme Court.

Ex-President Harrison Supports the Wright Law.

Vast Interests Hinge on the Final Decree.

The Courtroom Crowded with Interested Listeners—Array of Legal Talent—Those Present from California.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(Special Dispatch.) The Tregua case was heard today, ex-President Harrison, Judge John F. Dillon, Judge Rhodes and every legal upholding of the constitutionality of the Wright law; Joseph H. Choate, B. H. Bond and George H. Maxwell arguing against it.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Supreme courtroom was the center of attraction at the capital today. The news that ex-President Harrison would appear in the California irrigation case drew thousands through the mud and rain to the capitol and for two hours before noon the halls were thronged and the doors besieged. Owing to the limited space in the old Senate chamber, where the Supreme Court sits, few persons gained admission. In the courtroom were some of the most prominent men of the country, including Joseph Choate.

Gen. Harrison took a seat at a table immediately in front of the Chief Justice and behind the counsel for the government. It was his first public appearance in Washington since he left the White House three years ago. His appearance had changed but slightly. The careworn look had disappeared and time seemingly had dealt kindly with him. He consulted his notes freely while the counsel for the government proceeded him, was speaking. There was a great array of legal talent on both sides of the case.

Gen. Harrison entered upon his argument as soon as Judge Rhodes had finished. He stood at the table and with his coat thrown back and hands plunged into his pockets, he delivered a long and earnest speech. The defendant with a calm and collected manner, which was characteristic of the ex-President. His voice seemed weak as he proceeded. In opening, he stated that he was not a lawyer, but that he was a citizen of the State of California, and that he was therefore entitled to the protection of the laws of that State. He then proceeded to state that the Wright law was a violation of the constitution, and that he was therefore entitled to the protection of the laws of that State.

The defendant, who is now in San Francisco, filed a general denial to the charges made against her. She was not present at the trial today. The case lasted only a few moments, and Reynolds was made free from his entanglement.

Mrs. Reynolds came to Denver to reside last year. She was a beautiful young woman, with attractive manners, and soon made many friends. Reynolds pressed his suit, and they went to San Francisco to be married among their relatives. Reynolds is known as a member of the firm of Rollins & Co., bankers.

HAD NO BRAINS.

John Bly Demonstrates that Men Can Live Without 'Em.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—A special from Shamokin, Pa., says that an autopsy held on the remains of John Bly of Walsontown, reveals the fact that the man, without an ounce of brains he survived for years, was perfectly rational, could walk, possessed an excellent memory, had a fine olfactory sense, was able to taste, talk fluently, and, in fact, could do anything that ordinary mortals accomplished, except see. He had been blind for three years preceding his death.

For five years Bly, who was 29 years of age, suffered from a tumor which grew at the base of the brain. The growth had a curious effect on Bly's brain, and he became a curiosity to the physicians who awaited his death, which they could do nothing to prevent. At the request of a number of prominent citizens and some friends of Bly, Dr. Kaser made a post-mortem examination. When Bly's skull was opened by the surgeon, a tumor nearly the size of a billiard ball was discovered situated so as to demolish the sight center. The entire brain, with the exception of a thin shell, composed of the outer layers of the brain, was destroyed. When the surgeon's knife touched the shell it collapsed.

The American Forestry Association.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The tenth annual meeting of the American Forestry Association began today. The main object was to secure the enactment of laws for the proper administration of the forest reserves of the United States, which aggregate 17,564,000 acres, and secure the protection of the forests of the public lands. Two business sessions were held today. Forestry protection will be discussed. Speeches will be made by Secretary of Agriculture, Senator Dubois, Representatives Lacey and McRae, and others.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—After a brief but stirring debate the Senate today agreed to the concurrent resolution urging decisive action by the European powers against Turkey, pledging to the President the support of Congress in the most vigorous action he may take for the protection of Americans in Turkey, and the relief for injuries to American persons and property.

Senator Cullom of Illinois, who reported the resolution, urged its adoption in a speech which set forth the startling extent of the massacres, the greatest in the history of the world, the slaughter of the Armenians, the European alliance, and when in front of Constantinople, the necessity for the protection of our people within the Sultan's domain. He declared that there was one question, the English government, which he admitted, England, he said, protects her citizens at all times and under all circumstances.

Senator Frye proceeded to show that the United States was strong enough and quite as willing as England to protect its citizens whose lives and property were imperiled abroad. All he asked, he said, was that we should make England our model in this respect, and that we should protect our citizens in Turkey or elsewhere, would be safe in Turkey or elsewhere.

Senator Call followed, commending the utterances of Senator Frye, saying that, compared with these, the Senate resolutions were emasculated and feeble. He contended for a stronger expression of sentiment. Americans should fight their battles abroad when a display of force was needed, and not in the Senate. Mr. Hoar spoke briefly of the Armenian massacres, and urged that extreme utterances be deferred until the arts of moderation and diplomacy should be exhausted. The speaker said that the mission-aries in Turkey were in, and also in view of the fact that Miss Barton, with the Red Cross in hand, was now on her way to Armenia.

Senator Jones of Arkansas, in charge of the free-coinage substitute for the Bond Bill, asked unanimous consent that he vote taken at 4 o'clock on Thursday next. Senator Allen of Nebraska interposed an objection.

Senator Call offered an amendment to the Armenian resolution to the effect that "humanity and religion, and the principles on which all civilized governments shall, by peaceful negotiations, or, if necessary, by force of arms, prevent and suppress the Armenian massacres inflicted on the Armenian subjects of Turkey by the establishment of their own people with such guarantees of the civilized powers of its guarantee of the Armenian people as shall be adequate to that end."

Senator Call's motion was laid on the table and the original resolution was agreed to without division.

On Senator Jones' motion, it was then agreed that when the Senate adjourns today it be to meet on Monday. He also gave notice that on Thursday next he would ask the Senate to remain in session until a vote was had on the Silver Bill. Nebraska gave notice that he would address the Senate on the Monroe doctrine on Tuesday next.

The Free-coinage Bill was then laid before the Senate and Senator Baker of Kansas addressed the Senate in support of an amendment to the bill to confine the coinage of silver to the American product. Senator Baker divided the money ranks into gold monometallists, silver monometallists and bimetallicists. He belonged, he said, to the last class and declared it to be his opinion that the questions of tariff and finance would be settled unaided and alone by the Republican party. Concerning the coinage of American silver, the Senator said it would give employment to idle laborers and would lead to our primary or redemption money.

A bill was passed by the House of Representatives for the relief of settlers thereon. The Senate, after a brief executive session, adjourned at 4:15 o'clock until Monday.

HOUSE.—There were no important incidents at the night session of the House, which was devoted to the consideration of private pension bills. About twelve bills were passed, among them one to pension the widow of late Gen. William Cogswell of Massachusetts, at $75 per month. This bill has passed the Senate.

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR BILL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs adopted the Diplomatic and Consular Bill. Mr. Dinsmore of the sub-committee in charge of the Bayard resolution, asked that the consideration be postponed until a consulate is to be established at Chun-King in China, salary $3000, as the city is in the district where demonstrations have been made against foreigners and is a center of missionary work. Interpreters are provided for the consulates at Erzerum and Harpoot, although the Sultan has declined to recognize the United States Consuls accredited to those places. The interpreters may not be needed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A delegation of the American Association of Masters and Pilots, of whom Capt. Thomas Wallace of San Francisco is one, addressed the House Committee on Commerce today in support of the bill for Mr. Lord of California to require second and third mates of seagoing vessels to be licensed.

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

The bug sharps at Redlands have divided opinions on the presence of scale in a shipment of fruit trees. Even doctors disagree.

It may seem strange to some people, but it is a fact that a cargo of about 500 tons of Los Angeles corn will soon be shipped from San Pedro. The grain was raised near Wilmington.

That the Pasadena Board of Trade is not a defunct body is proved by the fact that the gentlemen composing it propose to hold a banquet. Dead bodies don't eat. Ergo the Pasadena Board of Trade is very much alive.

There will be some mild profanity among sixty of the honorable citizens of Los Angeles during the next few days, when they discover that they are selected to dance attendance on the criminal court for the next three months.

The carelessness in impanelling a grand jury has been exemplified in Riverside county by a contest as to the validity of the jury, because one member of it was not on the assessment roll. The same question is asked concerning the San Diego grand jury, which is now considering matters of vital interest to that county.

The festive trolley car cannot too soon make its appearance on the old cable tramways to suit the convenience of the long-suffering inhabitants who depend on the cable lines for transportation. The cable between the Seventh-street power-house and the Plaza broke twice yesterday, causing interruption of traffic for several hours.

The different localities which are to be favored with excursions would do well to follow the example Pomona has set off freshening its exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce. Such a display attracts the attention of all the tourists in town. And if any of the excursion points have neglected to make an exhibit, now is the time to do it.

A correspondent writes The Times calling attention to the fact that street-corner guide signs are scarce in the business center of the city, though plentiful enough in the residence regions. As it is a newcomer he feels as much in need of corner signs on the business streets as elsewhere. Though there are plenty of people always around who could answer questions regarding his whereabouts.

"Small contributions thankfully received." Is one of the mottoes of the Chamber of Commerce. To maintain a really creditable display of California products the public must lend a hand. If anyone raises a particularly choice box of strawberries, a handsome bunch of roses, a branch full of fine lemons, etc., let him bring it to the Chamber of Commerce for public admiration. Or, if he cannot bring it himself, let him drop a postal card to the Chamber and a wagon will be sent for his contribution.

There is much kicking among people who use telephones at the complicated improvements that have been recently introduced by the company. When a person calls up a number, he is asked whether it is "main," or "pink" or "blue," or some other subdivision of the telephone department of which the average subscriber knows nothing. It is getting to be a pretty difficult matter to talk over the telephone nowadays, but the cost of the telephones has not yet been reduced, according to latest advice.

At a recent meeting of pedagogues one teacher declared that children ought to study their grammar lessons at noon and recess, instead of waiting their time in rough, noisy play. He further asserted that the city fathers had shamelessly neglected their duty in allowing gambling with marbles to go on for all these years. Every time a boy was found playing marbles, he keeps—so said the teacher, he should be arrested and thrown into jail just like a Chinese fan-tan player. That teacher was born fifty-three years ago, with a permanently ruined nervous system.

It has sometimes happened that a shrewd manager of an opera comique troupe has secured much free and valuable advertising by inciting some very modest person to denounce his show-bills as immoderate and demand that they be either torn from the boards or the shapely limbs of the pictured stage beauties be covered so as to conceal their artistic curves. Much talk about anything, whether it is a fence or a picture upon it, excites curiosity which is the food of good advertising. This being so, the first responsible for the posters to which the City Council objected with such holy horror, will doubtless duly appreciate the service that has been done by that august body.

ARIZONA'S CARNIVAL.

INDIANS, COWBOYS, SOLDIERS, FIREWORKS AND BRASS BANDS.

The People of Phoenix are Sparring No Efforts to Make the Carnival a Success—Unique and Picturesque Features.

The people who join the Merchants' Association Arizona picnic will have an experience which will forever leave a crimson glow in the particular corner of their brain in which they store the memory of the trip. The Phoenix clans are entering into the spirit of the affair with all the joyous abandon of a southern people.

The carnival begins February 19, and comes to a close on February 22—Washington's birthday. The Phoenix has not yet been worked out in its minutest details, but it has been decided to have a day parade and a night parade, a gorgeous display of fireworks, plenty of brass bands and speech-making.

There will be an especial feature. There will be bicycle races, track athletics and exhibitions of Arizona horsemanship by centaurs without a peer in the whole wide world. At this time of year the Phoenix climate is glorious, and it will be a joy and a delight merely to be alive and out of doors—fact which makes athletic sports peculiarly fitting.

But the Indians and the cowboys will be the crowning glory. Five hundred yelling, jumping, dancing Indians, attired in fantastic garments of paint, marching in the parades, dancing and playing Indian games for the benefit of the visitors to the carnival, and generally making things hum. And cowboys beyond the power of man to compute! They will gather from the utmost ends of the Territory, mounted on sturdy little bronchos, garbed in starchy sombreros and fringed leggings, and filled with a determination to see and be seen to the utmost power of man. Besides, the wild Indians there will be some samples of the tamed variety—300 boys and girls from the Phoenix Indian school, which is probably attracting more attention than any other Indian school in the country, with the single exception of that at Carlisle. These children will all be in uniform, and will march with the precision of old soldiers. In a series of floats will appear the Indian kindergarten children.

There will be regular soldiers, too, four companies of them, encamped just outside the town. Col. Frank M. Hatch is director-general of the carnival. He is eminently qualified for such a position, for he was with Buffalo Bill in Europe for two years and also with the great showman of the world's fair, exhibiting a "petrifaction" at present, getting pointers from the Fiesta authorities, buying fireworks and other articles for the carnival, etc.

He is much pleased with the warm interest in Arizona, and the Phoenix carnival which he finds here. The Merchants' Association has begun a movement for a big Southern California excursion to Phoenix, and the plan has been warmly approved by the other trade organizations. Undoubtedly the special train of Pullmans will be loaded down with people, and the streams of reciprocal amity will be running full.

Los Angeles will probably send a float to the carnival. Arizona will float a float built here by the Robinson Bros. and in charge of the Fiesta floats. This Arizona float will be taken to Phoenix for the carnival and then brought back for La Fiesta. Its subject is one which will stir the heart of the Arizona citizen to its uttermost depths: "The Forty-sixth Star."

GARLAND IS HAPPY.

Property Stolen by Jack the Early Riser, Recovered.

School Director Garland is happy because he has recovered the overcoat, scarf-pin, watch and chain and other trinkets which were stolen from him by the "early morning" burglar, November 23. The articles were taken from Mr. Garland's room at the Melrose House, while he was wrapped in slumber. They were recovered in San Francisco through the arrest of Harry Garthside, who it has been amply demonstrated, was "Jack, the Early Riser," who committed so many daring burglaries in Los Angeles during the months of November and December, and transferred his scene of operations to San Francisco, when the detectives began pressing him too hotly here. His career of crime in San Francisco was cut short, however, for Capt. Lee's detectives gathered him in before he had done much more. He had on Mr. Garland's scarf-pin and watch and chain when arrested. The overcoat was found in a pawnshop.

Other articles which Garthside stole here are being unearthed by the San Francisco police. Mr. Garland's effects were received by express yesterday by "Chief of Police" Glass, and immediately handed over to the owner, who was overjoyed at recovering his property in good condition.

Garthside, it will be remembered, was the adopted son of a prominent citizen of Pomona, who took him out of a foundling asylum in Iowa. He has been held to answer five charges of burglary in San Francisco, and his trial is now pending.

JUAN LOPEZ IN JAIL.

He May Yet Answer for the Murder of Naramore.

Sheriff Johnson of Riverside county yesterday arrested Juan Lopez at Norwalk, this county, and lodged him in the County Jail last night for safe-keeping, intending to return to Riverside with the prisoner this morning. Lopez was the accomplice of the Cummings brothers, now in San Quentin Prison under sentence of death for the murder of T. C. Naramore of this city in Riverside county, on the night of August 1, last. Lopez, it will be remembered, turned State's evidence, and it was principally on his testimony that the Cummings boys were convicted. Riverside grand jury has since indicted him for perjury in connection with the Naramore case, and it is understood he is also to be tried for murder. The Cummings brothers were to be hanged December 2, last, but the execution of their sentence was postponed pending the decision of their appeal to the Supreme Court for a new trial.

In the report of the amateur dramatic entertainment at the Church of the Unity Thursday evening, at which the comedy "Pro Tem" was so admirably presented, mention of the fact that it was managed by Foley Parker, was inadvertently omitted. Mr. Parker is highly complimented on his success as a manager.

There are no sudden changes of temperature and no cold nights at Coronado Beach, the location of America's first seaside hotel. The official reports give Coronado's average temperature for Dec., Jan. and Feb. as over 60 deg. warmer than that of Naples, Mentone and Nice. At Coronado in the past year there were only two hours when the thermometer stood below 40 deg. The hotel is unequalled as a health or pleasure resort. Don't miss Coronado in your California trip. ## SUING A CONSTABLE.

A Laundryman Wants to Recover His Horse and Cart.

A civil action brought by S. B. Manis against Constable John R. Slater of Pasadena was on trial in Justice Morrison's court yesterday afternoon. Manis is a laundryman and formerly ran a small laundry in Pasadena, but he was driven out of business after straightening out his affairs he had nothing left except a horse and cart, a few household goods and a wife and three children. With these few chattels Manis was obliged to feed, he took the horse and cart and secured employment in a small laundry started by an old man named Kanagy. For the services of himself, his horse and cart Manis was to receive the munificent salary of $10 a week, the horse and cart forming a very essential part of the contract. As part of Manis's work was to gather up soiled clothes and deliver the laundered garments. But for the use of his rig, Mr. Kanagy would not have been so high a salary and the wife and three children of Manis would have been in danger of starvation.

But Manis's prosperity was of short duration, for Constable Slater of Pasadena swooped down upon him with a writ of attachment for the horse and cart. It appears that Manis owed a Pasadena grocer, named Munger, $20 and several other people lesser amounts. Munger secured an assignment of all the claims, then swooped on Manis with a writ of attachment, which Constable Slater served. The seized horse and cart were sold to satisfy Manis's debt, Munger being the purchaser.

Manis was not only much embarrassed by this procedure, but Kanagy's laundry was badly crippled by being deprived of the horse and cart. Manis told his trouble to the District Attorney, who took pity on the man, and Deputy James was delegated to sue Slater on a writ of replevin. It being set up that the seized horse and vehicle were a necessary part of Manis's means of earning a livelihood for himself and family, and therefore exempt from attachment.

Evidence in the case was heard yesterday, and arguments were made, after which the court took the matter under advisement till next Monday.

Branch to Lompoc.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24.—The Southern Pacific Company has offered to build a branch line into Lompoc from a point on the main line where it crosses the Santa Ynez River, provided the people will present the company a complete right-of-way between the two points.

It was announced at the general offices of the company that the coast division would be permitted to build a point eleven miles below Guadalupe on February 1. A station to be known as Casimilla will be established at this place. By the line, in the interest, the road will be in operation to the south side of the Santa Ynez River, where a station to be known as Lompoc Junction, will be established. The point Junction is twenty-six miles south of Guadalupe, the present terminus of the coast division, and it is from this point that the Southern Pacific proposes to build a branch line into Lompoc, a distance of eight miles, provided it can get right-of-way free. In the meantime the people of Lompoc will be afforded better transportation facilities after the line is placed in operation. The Southern Pacific has made arrangements to operate a stage line between Casimilla and Lompoc, a distance of fifteen miles, making quick connections with the through train from San Francisco.

Too Tough for Whittier.

Deputy Sheriff Curley of San Francisco arrived from the north yesterday with an incorrigible boy who has been committed to the Whittier Reformatory School. Curley took the lad to Whittier and exchanged him for another boy who was sent there by mistake. The youth who was brought away had already served a term at Whittier, and released himself by his majority. He went to San Francisco after graduation and committed a burglary, for which he was arrested, and on representing himself to be 17 years old, he was sent back to Whittier, but the deception was discovered when he returned there. He is now in the County Jail, and will be taken back to San Francisco by Deputy Sheriff Curley, who will leave for the north by Sunday afternoon. The ex-Whittier cadet will get a term in the State's prison on his return to the scene of his crime.

Los Angeles, Jan. 1st, 1895.

To the Public:—I was seriously afflicted for about ten years with lung, liver and kidney troubles. I could not get any relief from the misery I endured during those years. I was reduced in health until I was a mere skeleton—my sight and hearing were badly impaired. I was constantly troubled with constipation and piles and had a severe chronic cough. In short, life was a burden and death would have been a welcome guest. I was treated by various specialists from the United States and Canada, but of no avail. I tried all the patent medicines and pills I ever heard of, but these only gave temporary relief. Through the persistent advice of friends, I finally resolved to give Dr. Wm. H. Perry of 636 Upper Main street, a trial. Of course, like many others, I had no faith in a Chinese doctor, but it only took a few doses of his life-giving herbs to knock all the skepticism out of me and give me implicit faith in his superhuman skill. In just five weeks the doctor pronounced me cured and how I can truthfully say that I never was healthier, and never felt better in my life. My sight and hearing are both fully restored. That obstinate cough, constipation and piles are entirely cured and I am rapidly gaining in flesh—having gained 40 pounds in two months. I am truly grateful to the doctor for having created in me a new life. I earnestly recommend all sufferers and skeptics to give the doctor a trial and be convinced of his superiority as a physician. Yours respectfully, JOHN M. STEVENSON, 636 BELLEVUE AVE., LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The best Dry Goods houses in the United States are recommending Black Sicilians for Dress Goods this season; plain or brocade will have a large sale; the best qualities are made from the best quality of pure mohair wools; they have a rich lustre, are thoroughly dust-proof, and there is no black made that will stand the sun and water so well; even salt water will not affect the colors in the least, as they are largely used for bathing suits. We have Sicilians from the cheapest qualities up to $2 a yard; plain and brocades are the goods that are selling for Spring; in this connection we want to call your attention to a lot of fine all-wool Dress Goods and pure Mohairs for 50c and 75c a yard; these goods were bought to sell for 75c and $1 a yard, but owing to a very early shipment we must sell them. We are doing a larger dress goods business this year, so far, than we done last January. Last year our Dress Goods sales were fully 50 per cent. more than the previous year. We are making more effort and getting better results than ever before. The Dress Goods stock is free from any old goods. Less than one hundred dollars will buy every yard of unsalable goods in the house. With this excellent showing we can count upon a much larger business than ever before. We particularly want you to examine our dollar line of Black Dress Goods. Much the largest assortment we have ever shown at this season of the year and at our present prices the sales should grow. When it comes to goods of a higher class we tell you frankly we have lessened the assortment. Three-fourths of all the Dress Goods sold are from one dollar and down. We have increased the supply at these prices and have made extra efforts to secure the best for the price. In width we show wider goods. In quality we show the best values. In styles none but the latest. A few odds and ends in high-class plain goods marked down from $1.50 and $2, to $1 a yard.

The best Wrapper you ever saw for $1.25 and for $1.50 Bishop sleeves. Watteau back. Extra fullness in the skirt. Best Prints and fleeced lined materials. All colors, navy, pigeon red, turkey red. Full and half-mourning. Made as well as they can be made. Investigate. It will pay you.

CITY BRIEFS

THE ADS IN THE SUNDAY PAPERS.

When each week I peruse all the items of news

So clearly and legibly printed, Each political puff and the "humorous" stuff

That at wit has so sparingly hinted; When I've read reports of the criminal courts

And society's wonderful capers, Then I carefully scan on methodical plan

The ads in the big Sunday papers.

But I've noticed my wife every week of her life

When, her Sunday work through, she is able,

And free from all care, draw her little armchair

Up close to the library table; Then she'll put on her specs and, like most of her sex,

Interested in dry-goods and drapers, She'll serenely proceed to attentively read

The ads in the big Sunday papers.

And my two daughters fair will her interest share,

And talk with a knowledge surprising Of the big bargain sales and the price that prevails

At stores which are now advertising, So I really believe that the women perceive

Of their needs and desires many shapers In the dry goods displays that today meet their gaze

In the ads in the big Sunday papers. —John Chester, in Printer's Ink.

The Mt. Lowe hotels can now accommodate 400 guests.

RICHARD AND FARM

RANCH AND STOCK FARM

RURAL LIFE IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Crops and Markets.

The steady, soaking rain of the past few days has done a vast amount of good to the soil of this section, and the farmers all feel more hopeful than they did a couple of weeks ago.

Advisers from the orange-growing sections are not more encouraging. The loss of fruit through the frost of the closing day of the year at Riverside is now admitted to have been heavy, and will seriously interfere with shipments from that point. At the same time, eastern markets seem to be well supplied, and prices there are far from satisfactory.

In the dried-fruit market there is scarcely any business doing at present. The best prunes have been jobbed in Chicago at 4 cents a pound, a price which evidently leaves very little for the grower. The following from the San Francisco Post gives facts in regard to the prune situation up to the end of the year.

"Up to January 1, 1896, the shipments of prunes from San Jose for the season of 1895 amounted to 35,000,000 pounds, as Santa Clara prunes are estimated at probably 3,000,000 pounds had been shipped in here from outside points, leaving 32,000,000 pounds as Santa Clara shipments.

"The original estimate of the crop of 40,000,000 pounds has been reduced, and it is now generally conceded that the crop of 1895 will not be over 35,000,000 pounds. This leaves on hand 3,000,000, or say, 125 cars, not over 1,000,000 of which are in the growers' hands, the balance being held by the packers.

"The fruit exchanges are carrying not more than thirty-five cars, and will not be the distributing factor in the market that they were at the beginning of 1895, when they had 150 cars. All outside districts are well cleaned up, and there is practically nothing left in the growers' hands. As far as stocks are concerned, the position of prunes is certainly very strong at this time at this end.

"The Middle and Western States have not been heavy purchasers so far, and under the circumstances there is no reason why there should not be a material advance of present prices. The stocks here being held very firm by the packers, none of whom have any more than they will need for their spring trade. At advanced prices the product ought to find a ready market.

"France and England have consumed about 175 carloads of Santa Clara prunes since last November. In San Francisco choice bleached peaches are quoted at 4 to 4 1/2 cents, without any active demand at those prices. The time is now arriving when there should be a good demand for dried fruit, and holders of stocks are still hopeful that prices will improve before long.

In San Francisco a discussion is now going on regarding the relative advantage of shipping dried fruits in boxes or sacks. It is claimed that choice fruits, tastefully packed in boxes, fetch much better prices than when they are shipped in sacks.

In San Francisco there has been such a glut of potatoes during the past week that they have been selling at nominal prices, and in some cases have been given away. The great difficulty with which producers in California have to contend is not the raising of fine crops, but the securing of a fair price for them after they are raised. What is needed is to bring the producer and the consumer nearer together.

The market for general produce has been fairly steady during the past week. The rain will soon have the effect of shading prices of butter, while hay and barley already show a tendency to decline.

Honey, like almost all other products just at present, is very low in price. In San Diego county sales are being made at 3 cents a pound for extracted honey, and one buyer reports having picked up a price at the very low price of 2 1/2 cents a pound.

The Country's Crops.

The estimates of area, product and values of the principal crops of the United States for 1895, made by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture, contain some interesting figures, and upon some widely prevalent notions in regard to the relative importance of the various grain and other crops raised in this country. For instance, comparatively few people would suppose that the value of the hay of the United States is more than that of wheat, yet such is the case, as will be seen from the figures. The former exceeds the latter in value by nearly 70 per cent. The relative importance of oats and barley is also surprising to Californians, who are accustomed to regard barley as the great feed for farm animals. In the east, however, barley does not play an important part in agriculture, the value of the total product of the country being less than one-fifth the value of the oat crop. Corn stands far in the lead among the cereal crops, the value of the corn product being greater than that of wheat, oats, rye, barley, buckwheat and potatoes combined. Corn is, indeed, king in this country, and the important part which it plays in the finances of the United States may be seen from the simple statement that a difference of 1 cent a bushel on the crop last year amounts to the vast sum of $21,311,890.

The average gross receipts from these crops appear small to the California farmer. At the price quoted in the following statistics, the average receipts from which must be deducted all expenses, would be equivalent to less than $10 an acre for corn; less than $7 an acre for wheat; less than $5 an acre for oats; a trifle over $5 an acre for rye; less than $3 an acre for barley; about $3 an acre for buckwheat; about $12 1/2 for hay; and about $26 7/8 for potatoes. Thus it is seen that the hay and potato crops bring in by far the most money per acre. The expenses attending the cultivation of potatoes are, however, higher. The California farmer has reason to congratulate himself that he is not confined to raising wheat at a gross return of $7 an acre. It is easy to see why mortgaged farms are so numerous in sections where the farmers have to depend on such a miserable income for a living. Following are the figures:

Corn—Area, 52,575,830; product, 2,151,000,000 bushels; value, $5,567,500,000; yield per acre, 38.3 bushels; farm price per bushel, 26.4 cents.

Wheat—Area, 23,609,322; product, 281,242,000 bushels; yield per acre, 11.55 bushels; Spring wheat—Area, 11,458,010; product, 295,861,000 bushels; yield per acre, 18 bushels; total wheat area, 34,067,332; product, 437,103,000 bushels; value, $2,337,930,000; yield per acre, 18.7 bushels; farm price per bushel, 50.9 cents.

Oats—Area, 27,578,406; product, 324,444,000 bushels; value, $1,652,650,000; yield per acre, 29.2 bushels; farm price per bushel, 19.5 cents.

Rye—Area, 1,890,345; product, 27,210,000 bushels; value, $1,111,000,000; yield per acre, 14.4 bushels; farm price per bushel, 40 cents.

Buckwheat—Area, 763,297; product, 15,341,000 bushels; value, $6,336,000; yield per acre, 20.1 bushels; farm price per bushel, 41.5 cents.

Potatoes—Area, 2,945,952; product, 297,237,000 bushels; value, $78,985,000; yield per acre, 100.6 bushels; farm price per bushel, 26.5 cents.

Hay—Area, 4,208,453; product, 67,078,541 tons; value, $393,188,000; yield per acre, 1.50 tons; farm price per ton, $5.85.

California Versus Eastern Farming. The Times has repeatedly called the attention of California farmers to the fact that one of the main reasons for the lack of success sometimes complained of, even here, arises from the disregard of the small but important features of farming as it is carried on in the east, where the conditions are far less favorable to the farmer than in California.

It naturally astonishes farmers from the east to see their brethren in this State buying their vegetables, and milk, and butter, and eggs, and pork, as is too often done here. C. Irwin, an eastern farmer from Iowa, who has been traveling in Southern California since last September, sends The Times the following communication on this subject, and should be noted by those of our farmers whom the cap fits:

"I notice a great difference between our style of farming and that adopted in California. With us in Iowa a farmer raises a good deal of grain, and he raises all his vegetables and small fruits. He has a few cows and colts to eat up the corn-stalks, the stubble and the weeds and grasses, and he has a few pigs and chickens to consume the slops and refuse from the kitchen and the unmarketable grades of corn and other grain. From his garden he will sell at a good price a few sacks of early potatoes, and a few head of cabbages. His wife will have a few rolls of butter and several dozen eggs to send to market with him every Saturday, and he will have a few chickens, a few turkeys, and a few ducks. In the fall he will have fifteen or twenty fat hogs to sell, besides curing all the hams and bacon needed for the year. There will be a span of horses or colts to dispose of and half a dozen fat steers. Were it not for all these things, which cost the farmer but little, there would be many years when he could not make his expenses from the grain crop.

"In California I have noticed that scarcely any farmer raises his own vegetables; but few keep either hogs or chickens, and the stubble and weeds are raised all the year. What is needed is to bring the producer and the consumer nearer together.

only grown now as a means of seed-land to grass, and seeding with oats and barley is becoming more common. None of these grains can now be grown at a profit.

Irrigation Becoming General.

(Irrigation Age) Irrigation is spreading throughout the United States. Agricultural classes have been studying the advantages of this sure method of farming for a long time. The general thought of the past season has been once more indicated that the richest and most fertile lands along the largest water courses are not safe without means of watering, for rain cannot be depended upon when most needed. Intelligence is received that for the coming season irrigation will be resorted to in various sections of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Maine. There was irrigation in several of the Southern States in 1895, and in 1896 every State in the whole southern tier will farm more or less under the infallible plan. It is learned also that sections of Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota will take the line, and that irrigation operations will be largely increased in Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota. In the former arid States the water of the West, great progress has been made in this safe mode of farming, but this article deals wholly with the rain belt. The Irrigation Age, a pioneer in irrigation journalism, congratulates the country on the general adoption of the methods it has so long advocated.

That the wonderful success of the irrigated farm at Kankakee will give a great impetus to irrigation in Illinois there can be no doubt. Sooner or later this State and other States along the line of the great lakes will be watered by pipelines, and the water of the West, great progress has been made in this safe mode of farming, but this article deals wholly with the rain belt. The Irrigation Age, a pioneer in irrigation journalism, congratulates the country on the general adoption of the methods it has so long advocated.

The estimates of area, product and values of the principal crops of the United States for 1895, made by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture, contain some interesting figures, and upon some widely prevalent notions in regard to the relative importance of the various grain and other crops raised in this country. For instance, comparatively few people would suppose that the value of the hay of the United States is more than that of wheat, yet such is the case, as will be seen from the figures. The former exceeds the latter in value by nearly 70 per cent. The relative importance of oats and barley is also surprising to Californians, who are accustomed to regard barley as the great feed for farm animals. In the east, however, barley does not play an important part in agriculture, the value of the total product of the country being less than one-fifth the value of the oat crop. Corn stands far in the lead among the cereal crops, the value of the corn product being greater than that of wheat, oats, rye, barley, buckwheat and potatoes combined. Corn is, indeed, king in this country, and the important part which it plays in the finances of the United States may be seen from the simple statement that a difference of 1 cent a bushel on the crop last year amounts to the vast sum of $21,311,890.

The average gross receipts from these crops appear small to the California farmer. At the price quoted in the following statistics, the average receipts from which must be deducted all expenses, would be equivalent to less than $10 an acre for corn; less than $7 an acre for wheat; less than $5 an acre for oats; a trifle over $5 an acre for rye; less than $3 an acre for barley; about $3 an acre for buckwheat; about $12 1/2 for hay; and about $26 7/8 for potatoes. Thus it is seen that the hay and potato crops bring in by far the most money per acre. The expenses attending the cultivation of potatoes are, however, higher. The California farmer has reason to congratulate himself that he is not confined to raising wheat at a gross return of $7 an acre. It is easy to see why mortgaged farms are so numerous in sections where the farmers have to depend on such a miserable income for a living. Following are the figures:

Corn—Area, 52,575,830; product, 2,151,000,000 bushels; value, $5,567,500,000; yield per acre, 38.3 bushels; farm price per bushel, 26.4 cents.

Wheat—Area, 23,609,322; product, 281,242,000 bushels; yield per acre, 11.55 bushels; Spring wheat—Area, 11,458,010; product, 295,861,000 bushels; yield per acre, 18 bushels; total wheat area, 34,067,332; product, 437,103,000 bushels; value, $2,337,930,000; yield per acre, 18.7 bushels; farm price per bushel, 50.9 cents.

Oats—Area, 27,578,406; product, 324,444,000 bushels; value, $1,652,650,000; yield per acre, 29.2 bushels; farm price per bushel, 19.5 cents.

Rye—Area, 1,890,345; product, 27,210,000 bushels; value, $1,111,000,000; yield per acre, 14.4 bushels; farm price per bushel, 40 cents.

Buckwheat—Area, 763,297; product, 15,341,000 bushels; value, $6,336,000; yield per acre, 20.1 bushels; farm price per bushel, 41.5 cents.

Potatoes—Area, 2,945,952; product, 297,237,000 bushels; value, $78,985,000; yield per acre, 100.6 bushels; farm price per bushel, 26.5 cents.

Hay—Area, 4,208,453; product, 67,078,541 tons; value, $393,188,000; yield per acre, 1.50 tons; farm price per ton, $5.85.

California Versus Eastern Farming. The Times has repeatedly called the attention of California farmers to the fact that one of the main reasons for the lack of success sometimes complained of, even here, arises from the disregard of the small but important features of farming as it is carried on in the east, where the conditions are far less favorable to the farmer than in California.

It naturally astonishes farmers from the east to see their brethren in this State buying their vegetables, and milk, and butter, and eggs, and pork, as is too often done here. C. Irwin, an eastern farmer from Iowa, who has been traveling in Southern California since last September, sends The Times the following communication on this subject, and should be noted by those of our farmers whom the cap fits:

"I notice a great difference between our style of farming and that adopted in California. With us in Iowa a farmer raises a good deal of grain, and he raises all his vegetables and small fruits. He has a few cows and colts to eat up the corn-stalks, the stubble and the weeds and grasses, and he has a few pigs and chickens to consume the slops and refuse from the kitchen and the unmarketable grades of corn and other grain. From his garden he will sell at a good price a few sacks of early potatoes, and a few head of cabbages. His wife will have a few rolls of butter and several dozen eggs to send to market with him every Saturday, and he will have a few chickens, a few turkeys, and a few ducks. In the fall he will have fifteen or twenty fat hogs to sell, besides curing all the hams and bacon needed for the year. There will be a span of horses or colts to dispose of and half a dozen fat steers. Were it not for all these things, which cost the farmer but little, there would be many years when he could not make his expenses from the grain crop.

"In California I have noticed that scarcely any farmer raises his own vegetables; but few keep either hogs or chickens, and the stubble and weeds are raised all the year. What is needed is to bring the producer and the consumer nearer together.

The market for general produce has been fairly steady during the past week. The rain will soon have the effect of shading prices of butter, while hay and barley already show a tendency to decline.

Honey, like almost all other products just at present, is very low in price. In San Diego county sales are being made at 3 cents a pound for extracted honey, and one buyer reports having picked up a price at the very low price of 2 1/2 cents a pound.

POULTRY

The next best thing to dehorning is to fit a metal blunt tip over the horns of cattle, so as to prevent the horns from piercing when in play or anger it is pushed against other animals. These tips can be procured in any hardware store, and are so simple enough of the horns to make them a good fit is a painless operation that does not require either skill or severe labor.

The sixth annual show of the Los Angeles Poultry Association will be held in Los Angeles next week, opening Tuesday afternoon. There will be no cash premiums, the object being to show the general public the value of the show. The show promises to be a successful one.

Too Much on Limited Capital. (Florida Agriculturist.) Concentrating the capital to a small area, and doing business in a manner so as to secure the maximum of profit, is a source of failure to some. What we mean is that those who build large poultry-houses do so upon an estimate that the house must accommodate a certain number of fowls under all circumstances. It is seldom that we find a house being divided into two equal parts, each containing half the number of fowls. Some poultrymen who pay largely for their expenses in the end, and to labor under the supposition that in order to secure the greatest number of eggs they must keep more hens than they have room for. The result is that the house is not divided into two equal parts, each containing half the number of fowls. During the recent meeting of the Illinois State Horticultural Society at Kankakee, 100 of the members in attendance, with their wives and children, were invited to the Illinois Eastern Hospital for the Insane, on the invitation of Dr. Gopen, the superintendent, and the reported success of the past season was investigated to their entire satisfaction. That many of these farmers will irrigate their orchards and gardens, and go South, is a fact. Certain it is that a large number of them said they "didn't" propose to wait on the rain any more. But corn, and everything that grows, will be irrigated, and even in the most fertile regions of the rain belt, crops will be fourfold greater with irrigation than without it.

A bit of intelligence which is of importance to Illinois farm owners can be conveyed herewith. It is that a company has recently been incorporated at Springfield, Ill., with the name of "The Illinois Fruit and Vegetable Company," which intends nothing less than the buying up of farms just now, when farmers, as is supposed, are discouraged and ready to sell out. ## SAN DIEGO COUNTY.

ROMANTIC CAREER OF THE LATE
GOV. RYERSON.

An American-born Citizen Who Passed Most of His Life in Mexico—Lost Most of His Wealth at Poker—The Morena Case.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 24.—(Regular Correspondence.) The death of ex-Gov. George Ryerson, formerly Governor of Lower California, in this city on Thursday, as reported by telegraph, removes a man of unique personality from the ranks of old Southern Californians. Born in St. Louis in 1832 Ryerson went to Chihuahua, Mex., at the age of 18, and in 1852 drove a flock of sheep from Mexico to Santa Fe, crossing what was at that time one of the wildest parts of the continent. He married Guadalupe Serrano in 1859 of Lower California. At the beginning of the war he disappeared. He was believed to have joined the Confederate army. For seven years he was missing. Meanwhile Mrs. Ryerson, thinking that her husband was dead, married a second time. Ryerson suddenly reappeared. Husband No. 2 then disappeared, and Gov. and Mrs. Ryerson continued living happily together. In 1886 Ryerson was appointed sub-prefect of the northern district of Lower California. He was afterward succeeded by Gen. Luis E. Torres. The death was of large stature and of unusual physical power. Strangely enough, he preferred Mexican society to that of the Americans. He was an ardent Confederate, and is believed to have commanded a rebel regiment during the war. One of his weaknesses was an inordinate love for the game of poker, and although once possessed of large ranches and herds of stock, he died without means as a consequence. He was a relative of the Ryersons so well known in Chicago and St. Louis.

FILED AN ANSWER.

In the case of George H. Neale and others against O. J. Strough and the Morena Company, the defendants filed an answer denying that they were not at any and all times bona fide owners of capital stock in the Morena Company, or that any stock was placed in the names of others by O. J. Strough without consideration or for the purpose of qualifying them for election as directors, or that they or any of them might with O. J. Strough be elected directors for fraudulent purposes. Other defenses were set forth. The court to dissolve the injunction given plaintiffs and the defendants to recover their costs in the action from the plaintiffs.

D. Lamb filed an amended complaint against H. A. Harbaugh and others, claiming $100 damages for alleged assault of the plaintiff's premises at National City some time ago. This case grew out of a desire of the defendants to summarily punish Lamb for wrong doing of which he was thought to be guilty.

POMONA.

Arrival of a Youthful Traveler.

POMONA, Jan. 24.—(Regular Correspondence.) Among the people who have arrived in this city during the last few days is Master Joseph Terrill, a stepson of George R. Smith, who bought the Lawrence orange grove, out on the Kingsley tract some months ago. The lad is nearly eleven years old. He has been living with relatives at Cartagena, United States of Colombia in South America, and several months ago his stepfather sent money to the boy, and gave him instructions as to how to come on to Pomona from his tropical home. Master Joseph set sail from the United States of Colombia early last December, going on a schooner to Philadelphia and from there to New York. At the latter city he was bought a ticket for California, and was started for the West. He came through all right and without loss of time. He says no one who came across the continent on the train with him had nearly so much attention and consideration as he. The passengers and trainmen all vied in looking out for the lad and in seeing that he had his meals promptly and had a good berth at night.

A CONTRACT AWARDED.

The City Trustees met this afternoon, and after canvassing the nineteen bids that were put in on Tuesday last for furnishing 15,000 feet of iron and steel pipe and for laying the same, as a part of the construction of the new system of public water works here, decided that the bid of the General Construction Company of San Francisco was the lowest. The contract was awarded this company at $58,976. Lawrence Fleming of this place has a sub-contract from the company for the work of digging trenches and laying the pipe.

NUMBERING THE HOUSES.

The work of numbering every building in town is nearly finished. The City Trustees ordered it to prepare for the establishment of a free postal delivery here in the next few months. A great many people have smiled at the big numbers on houses a few blocks away from the center of town and on sparsely-settled streets. The City Engineer explains that the system of house numbering adopted here is that known as the Philadelphia plan; it has a number for every foot of line, feet along a street. Thus if a house or a building had four doors in twenty feet, each door would have a number. The plan is said to be the best yet known, and has been adopted by many cities and villages in the East.

POMONA BREVIETTES.

The stockholders of the People's Bank held their annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon and elected the following directors for the ensuing year: William B. Dole, C. E. White, George F. Ferris, John H. Dole, S. F. Owen, J. M. Elliott, Los Angeles, and J. J. Swiger, Toledo, O. Subsequently William B. Dole was re-elected president; John H. Dole, cashier; C. E. White, vice president, and Charles M. Stone, assistant cashier. The annual report showed that the business has increased 25 per cent during 1895, and the deposits over 50 per cent.

VENTURA COUNTY.

A Coming Test of the Liquor Ordinance—A Burns Banquet.

VENTURA, Jan. 24.—(Regular Correspondence.) The arrest of A. Bullett, the Swiss saloon-keeper, and the demand of his attorneys that he be tried by a jury, has developed some peculiar features. Bullett was arrested by Deputy City Marshal Ireland on two warrants signed by S. S. Collins, who, as chairman of the Board of Town Trustees, acts as City Recorder, and before whom the case will come up for trial on Tuesday next. If the cases are not compromised, and there is some talk that they will be, they will be the first of record since the organization of the town in which the chairman of the Town Trustees and a jury has been called upon to act in the settlement of offenses against the liquor ordinances. N. B. Blacklock volunteered to assist in prosecuting the cases, which action is hailed with great rejoicing by the Law and Order League people who are active in the business. The City Marshal in his efforts to enforce the liquor laws. The better liquor-dealers claim to take no interest in the matter, except to prevent the making of a record in the settlement of the case that can be used against them in the future. A letter from the defendant, which is a response to a query to what he thought of the closing ordinances, replied: "If the authorities will act impartially in enforcing them, I have no objection. A reputable dealer will be perfectly satisfied, as it can work no great damage, where as are treated fairly. But, if, as in the past, favoritism is shown, we will fight it out."

CATTLE-STEALERS.

The cattle-stealing cases against Dominguez, Real and Encinas reached the superior court this morning by the return of a plea of guilty by Judge Williams in the case of Pablo Dominguez. In sentencing down Judge Williams let him down easy, for the reason of a plea of guilty, as charged in the complaint. Tuesday, the court will hear the case of the three men accused of having stolen cattle from the hands of the Butcher Hannan of Santa Paula, and that the three men accused had stolen them. Dist. Atty. Poplin refused to dismiss the case, and the case will come on for trial. Senator Orr, who was engaged to assist the prosecution, and who conducted the examination in the Justice's court, informed that he will not make a general consent to the plea of guilty of the trio, escapes, and Dominguez suffers. Jealousy between officers and politicians is held responsible for the outcome of the cases. W. E. Shepherd, attorney for the defense, stated this morning that there was no question as to the facts of the case, and that the plea of guilty was entered. The light sentence imposed occasioned considerable surprise.

DAMAGES WANTED.

Attorney B. F. Thomas of Santa Barbara has been in town gathering points in regard to the accident which resulted in the breaking of the leg of A. H. Doe, the capitalist who fell into an open unprotected ditch on a side street in this city.

At the time of the accident mention was made in The Times that a lawsuit had been started by the injured party. This information came to the Times correspondent from a close friend of Mr. Doe's, who at the same time made known to the editor of The Times that a member of the town board had sat up with Mr. Doe in the Rose Hotel the night following the accident. Attorney Thomas had interviewed with the chairman and members of the board in reference to proposed settlement of the case. No money was found from which to pay the expenses incurred, and the matter rests until Mr. Doe's attorney makes report and a line of action is settled upon.

A CHANGE OF FEED.

The prisoners in the County Jail, consisting of hobos and others charged with various crimes, have had a change of feed. They have for some time past been fed by the Brunswick Hotel, but the culinary department of this house changed hands last week, and now the prisoners have had to change their eating to that of the Richelieu Hotel.

Miss Ball, the new proprietor of the Brunswick dining-rooms was seen to-day by a reporter for The Times, to whom she stated that the reason the change was made was because she could not make any money at the price she received for her meals. She frequently she requested that the officer look elsewhere for board for the prisoners. The price paid by the county for the prisoner's board is but 11 cents per meal.

ORANGE COUNTY BREVIETTES.

The motion to change the place of trial of the case of the Fruit Company vs. Earl Fruit Company was argued today (Friday) and submitted and denied by Superior Judge Towner.

The Amusement Concert Company appeared in Spurgeon's Hall Thursday evening to an appreciative audience. The programme was deserving of a crowded house.

Rev. Dr. Garton will preach the fourth of his series of sermons on popular amusements in the Baptist Church Sunday. The subject will be "Theaters."

"Dud" Duthrow is again feeling quite badly over his attempted escape from the County Jail. Deputy Sheriff Ulm proved too much for him.

Mrs. Cordella P. Humphreys was today appointed administratrix of the estate of C. W. Humphreys, deceased, by Superior Judge Towner.

S. W. Sutton of Santa Ana has purchased a lot in that city of J. N. Smith for $500.

SAN PEDRO.

Gratifying Prospects for Oil Development—Vessel Movements.

SAN PEDRO, Jan. 24.—(Regular Correspondence.) Gratifying indications are noted at the well which is being bored for oil about one mile west of town on the Sepaveda ranch. The work of boring has been considerably delayed by water accumulating in the hole. The water, when pumped out, is discharged into a pool confined a short distance from the well. A scum accumulates on the surface of this water and the scum contains what, beyond reasonable doubt, seems to be petroleum. The well is now about three hundred feet deep and, since one-half that depth was reached, numerous strata of what is declared to be asphaltum mixed with clay sand and gravel have been tapped. These facts are thought to be excellent indications of abundant petroleum lower down. The well is very conveniently located so that should oil in paying quantities be had it can be piped to the waterfront on a heavy down grade so there will be no need of pumping. There is no probability of injunction suits or other obstacles in that line, such as have troubled the Los Angeles producers.

VESSEL MOVEMENTS.

Most of the vessels which were overdue have arrived. Among them is the bark Ferris S. Thompson with lime. It will probably be two or three days before she will be drawn up to the wharf for the reason that it is now the time of ebb tide. As soon as the tide changes, which will be within two or three days, the depth of water will be sufficient so that she can be brought to the proper place for discharging. Recent arrivals at this port include the following:

January 17, steamer Santa Cruz, Capt. McKillop, from Lompoc, with 1100 sacks potatoes.

January 19, steamer St. Paul, Capt. Duggan, from San Francisco, with forty-five tons of merchandise.

January 22, schooner Nacomis, Capt. Rook, from Tacoma, with 650,000 feet lumber for W. H. Perry Lumber Company.

Schooner Meteor, Capt. Bjorn, from Port Hadlock, with 700,000 feet lumber for San Pedro Lumber Company; schooner Lucy, Capt. Peterson, from Gardner, with 365,000 feet lumber for Kerckhoff-Cunneen Mill and Lumber Company; steamer Eureka, Capt. Jensen, from San Francisco, with 155 tons merchandise; steamer Pasadena, Capt. Hamilton, from Lompoc, with 227,000 feet lumber for Kerckhoff-Cunneen Lumber Company.

January 23, schooner Bangor, Capt. Apple, from Port Gambia, with 600,000 feet lumber for San Pedro Lumber Company; bark Ferris S. Thompson, Capt. Whitney, from Roche Harbor, with 300,000 feet lumber for W. H. Perry Mill and Lumber Company.

January 24, brig Tanner, Capt. Brown, from San Francisco, with 200,000 feet lumber for W. H. Perry Mill and Lumber Company.

THE SARDINE INDUSTRY.

For the past four weeks the two sardine canneries have had scarcely any fish. The lack is said to be due to the fact that the water has been very clear so that when it was attempted to catch them with nets they would escape. The meshes, the recent rain has been so heavy that the water somewhat so that the catch will be better.

WANTS DAMAGES.

A damage suit is in progress before Justice Downing today. It appears that J. P. Rupert owned a team of horses in Wilmington and they were attached on a suit brought by John Grice. Now comes Rupert and says that the Grice had no right to bring the suit and is therefore owing him (Rupert) for damages.

BREVIETTES.

Joe Barca, the Italian "longshoreman" who was the victim of the explosion at his home about two weeks ago, has improved sufficiently to walk a little. An attempt is being made to get the Board of Trustees to take action for the grading of some of the principal streets.

About five hundred tons of corn, raised near Wilmington, will, in a few days, be shipped from this port to San Francisco to be reshipped from there to Australia.

It is expected that considerable quantities of flaxseed and castor beans will be shipped from Wilmington during the coming season.

A Miner's Sudden Death.

A man sitting in a chair in the office of the United States Hotel at 7:30 o'clock yesterday evening fell suddenly forward, striking his head on the floor, and died. The man was a miner, and was identified as William Cross by a neighbor. He was a resident of San Diego county, near Yuma. He had been in the city four days, but was not very well known here. Nearly $200 cash was found on him, and he was taken to his pockets. The remains were found in the undertaking parlors of Robert L. Garrett & Co., where the Coroner's office is located. Death is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

Judge Banning's Cook.

Geek Ting Hay, Judge Banning's Chinese cook, who fired two shots at Gong Chung in Chinatown, Thursday evening, was arraigned before Justice Morison yesterday on a charge of committing murder. Gong Chung and Ah Gee, who were detained as witnesses, were released. Geek Ting had his picture taken and the price paid for the City Jail to await preliminary examination January 29. Meantime, the Banning household are trying to digest the culinary products of a new chef.

MANAGER CHICAGO JOURNAL.

Col. F. C. Pierce Was Made a Well Man By Paine's Celery Compound.

At the door of every newspaper office might be posted the general order—Rush!

The busiest concerns in the busiest streets are sluggish compared with these newsgathering hives where human fingers and brains are matched to keep up with machinery.

The brunt of this fatiguing mental strain, unavoidable in getting out one of the big city dailies, for example, the Chicago Evening Journal, falls on its business manager—in this case of the oldest daily in Illinois, Col. Frederick C. Pierce.

Col. Pierce is one of the busiest men in Chicago, a city of early and late workers. Trainworkers in every profession in the city are matched to keep up with machinery.

"For several years I have been troubled with sick headache, caused by constipation. I have tried every remedy in perfect faith, and never sick but for two weeks in my life. This sick headache has been very annoying. I have taken a number of different medicines which have been used and recommended by others, but not until I took Paine's celery compound did I find any relief.

"This season I took one bottle and was not troubled with headache for at least six months. Since that time I have kept the medicine in the office and used it occasionally, and have not been troubled with headache since.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends, who have been benefited as I have. For a person who is disposed to constipation, it is unquestionably one of the best medicines that there is on the market today.

"Yours respectfully,
"F. C. PIERCE,
"Business Manager Chicago Evening Journal."

A black cloud is no surer indication of an approaching storm than persistent headaches are of dangerous debility.

There is no one specific that can permanently cure headaches unless it goes to the seat of the trouble. That great nerve and brain restorer, Paine's celery compound, does get rid of them and leaves no chance for their return, because the deep-seated cause—the weakened nervous system at last is supplied with the food it has so sadly felt the need of.

Through physicians in every city in this country prescribe Paine's celery compound, where a rapid building up of the system is imperative. As an invigorator in cases of nervous exhaustion, sleeplessness and a poor state of the blood it is the malady of the ablest practitioners throughout the United States.

A zero glance at the faces of weak, nervous, run-down persons after they have begun to use this greatest of all remedies, shows how rapid is the nourishing effect of Paine's celery compound.

There are thousands upon thousands well today because they used Paine's celery compound.

It is contrary to the generally prevailing idea that the olive flourishes throughout the greater part of the State. If it is true that the culture of the olive has not proved generally successful north of the Tehachapi, this is another valuable feature of Southern California, and lands in this section will before long be taxed to supply the demand for olive orchards.

Why Pork is the Cheapest Meat. (American Cultivator.) A pound of pork in a well-bred pig can be made more cheaply than a pound of any other kind of meat. The whole effort of the farmer is to produce the cheapest meat product. Concentrating his efforts thus it is not strange that he is successful. The hog has a smaller proportion of bone and skin than any other domestic animal. Even his feet when cleaned and cooked are excellent eating. There is perhaps another reason why the hog produces meat more cheaply. Its excretions are less in proportion to its food than those of other animals. It does not sweat except through the small tissues which are found in its front legs. It is necessary, therefore, that the other excretory organs be active and in healthful working order. This is one reason why it is a good practice to give occasional doses of sulphur to fattening hogs, to keep them clean and healthy. If these are given frequently the bowels will be kept open, which, in the pig, is especially necessary in maintaining health. There should also be given some green food to hogs that are fattened on corn.

Grinding Grain for Hogs. (Salt Lake Tribune.) The practice of grinding grain for hogs is not profitable unless it can be done cheaper than it will pay the mills to grind it. At the Canada experimental station it was found that there was practically no advantage in grinding grain for hogs, though it paid to soak the whole grain. A good way is to soak the whole grain for twenty-four hours before feeding, and to let the hogs have all they will eat up clean. If hogs have access to the pig pens there will be no grain wasted. Further experiments are needed to show the value, if any, of grinding grain for feeding, but it is safe to say that the increased value will not be enough to pay for the grinding at present prices of grinding.

Heber M. Wells, who will be the first Governor of the State of Utah, was born in Salt Lake City thirty-seven years ago, and was educated at the University of Utah.

RAILROAD RECORD. MORE BONDS FOR SALE. MONTEREY AND FRESNO PAPER ON THE MARKET.

A Gigantic Passenger Association Formed at Chicago—Congressman Cowen Elected President of the Baltimore and Ohio—Notes.

An Associated Press dispatch from Pacific Grove states that Col. A. W. Jones, president of the Monterey and Fresno Railroad, has started east to effect a sale of $200,000 worth of bonds in New York. His secretary states that $100,000 worth of bonds have been sold here on condition that he sell $200,000 worth more in the East. The colonel feels confident of the sale, and also states that an eastern firm has already been pledged to undertake the construction and equipment of the road from Monterey to Hollister. The road will be 150 miles long, and will pass through some of the finest fruit and grain country in the State. The directors have secured the water frontage of Monterey, said to be worth $1,000,000.

A GIGANTIC COMBINATION.
CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—A two-days' session behind closed doors of more than thirty railroad systems formed a gigantic association in this city last evening.

The organization will be known as the Central Passenger Committee, and will include all the present roads in the territory bounded by Toronto, Buffalo and Pittsburgh on the east; Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis on the west; the Grand Trunk of Canada and Lakes Huron and Michigan on the north, and the Ohio River on the south. The association will have absolute jurisdiction and will have control over all passenger affairs in this territory, and will be entirely independent of any in no way subsidiary to the Presidents' Joint Traffic Pool, the operation of which the Interstate Commerce Commission is now attempting to enjoin at New York. The headquarters of the new organization will be in Chicago, from which point all passenger matters in the above territory will be directed. The combine is not a pool in any sense of the word, but has been formed for the purpose of agreeing upon and maintaining uniform rates of fare. Under the agreement signed each road will be subject to fine for violations of rules, cutting rates, or any other infraction of its provisions. Questions which cannot be settled by the chairman will be referred to arbitrating.

The differential fare principle is recognized by the new agreement, which means that there will continue to be two classes of routes in this territory, the standard and the differential lines.

UNION PACIFIC SCHEMERS.
NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Attorney Morrison, who represents the first-mortgage bondholders of the Union Pacific Railroad, whose holdings amount to over $5,000,000, has prepared a bill which he will ask Congressman Powers, chairman of the Committee on Pacific Railroads, to bring before Congress. The plan includes the appointment of three government commissioners, who shall secure the cooperation of all the other creditors they can enlist in bringing about foreclosure through the failure to pay interest on the last three coupons due, and buy the road at the sale. Reorganization would be made by issuing new first-mortgage bonds for the full amount of the debt, at a rate which the commissioners might decide was justified by the surplus of the road.

COLORADO RATES RESTORED.
CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Passenger rates between Colorado common points were restored today by the Atchison road. This action was taken in consequence of the Denver and Gulf having cleared the Colorado market of all its special tickets, which it put on the market so freely during the progress of the fight over coal rates. An agreement has been reached, on all points of difference between the two lines, and the coal rates, as well as those on passenger business, have been restored.

A COLONIZATION ROAD.

Detwiler, Charles Barry, H. M. Barry, E. B. Barry, A. L. Morrison, George L. Johnson and F. L. Bartlett.

THE B. AND O. PRESIDENT.
BALTIMORE, Jan. 24.—John K. Cowen, general counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and representative in Congress for the Fourth Maryland district, was today elected president of the Baltimore and Ohio, to succeed Charles F. Mayer, who resigned in November. Cowen was decided upon as a compromise between the factions favoring Maj. Alexander Shaw and Second Vice-President King.

THE SUNSET CLUB.
The first annual meeting was held last evening.

The first regular monthly spread of the Sunset Club was indulged in with the usual guests at Jerry Illich's cafe on Third street last evening, forty-five members being present.

It was the club's annual meeting, as well as being the regular monthly event, and the first business of the evening, after the dispatching of the report, was the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the reelection of the old officers, who are as follows: Enoch Knight, president; Charles D. Willard, vice-president; Fred L. Alles, secretary; Louis F. Vetter, treasurer.

At the meeting in December it was voted to increase the club's membership to seventy, the original number being sixty. There was one vacancy besides the increase, and a ballot was had, which resulted in the election to full fellowship in the club of the following named: William D. Babcock, J. J. Byrne, Homer F. Eakin, Godfrey Holterhoff, Jr., George S. Patton, Wiloughby Rodman, James B. Scott, Col. George H. Smith, William A. Spalding, Percy E. Wilson, W. D. Woolwine.

Instead of the usual set papers the literary programme for the evening consisted of the reading of an original club publication called The Peak, the matter for which was contributed by the club's members, under the editorial supervision of a strong staff. The paper was rich, rare and racy. It contained all the news of the world, from the Tansvaal to Balloda Slough; lively personals, brilliant paragraphs, red-hot editorials as able as they were caustic, advertisements that shamed description, drives at everybody in the club, from the president down to the last man at the foot of the table, scathing bits of sarcasm, pertinent and pungent local hits and allusions—in short, quite everything of a strictly lively and personal sort that if printed in the daily newspapers would lead to a fund of libel suits, aggravated assaults, and probably many good round horse-whippings. It was all good-natured rattery, however, and as everybody had to trot under the lash, the laugh went round, and if the galled jade winced he failed to indicate that his winners were wrong.

It was a highly successful evening and an event long to be remembered. The next meeting will be held on the day of Washington's birthday, and the event will be the reading of a paper by Judge Knight on "The Presidents of the United States."

HIZZONER, FINANCIER.
Hizzoner was a business man and "sabad" financier.

All hidden rocks and sunken reefs he missed by careful steering; His own affairs so prosperous, as evidence was clear.

To prove that under his control financial wrongs were righted; For peace and plenty smiled upon those under his direction.

But that was back in '94, and just before election. Within his head, the welfare of the city deep was rooted;

With his neck, its interest reposed, and he was suited; So quietly he held his own (save Broadway lots,) and stated

That should the people put him in they'd soon be elevated. Oh Lordy! how the rogues would squirm beneath his fierce inspection!

But that was back in '94, and just before election. The taxes soon would be reduced so much we wouldn't feel 'em;

Necessities would fall so low it wouldn't pay to steal 'em; And business men would grow so rich they all could soon retire.

While rents would fall astoundingly, and property would be higher; Free-jumping at the city's crib would meet with swift detection—

But that was back in '94, and just before election. Hizzoner has the welfare of the city on his docket;

For months and months he's chased around with passes in his pocket; And though his acts were curious, still we cannot well deny 'em.

For we have paid him for 'em, plunkets nine and one per diem. Oh let us rise and pass the hat, and sing a chorus selection.

For this you know is '96, and after the election. Our treasury is busted, and our taxes rise to glory;

But the people have to climb to reach the city's upper story; For the elevator's paralyzed for want of oil to run it.

Hizzoner says that Luckenbach's the one who be sure paid him for 'em, plunkets nine and one per diem.

"O'il purchase oil myself," said he, with quavering infection. He should; he said he'd "elevate" us after his election.

Hizzoner's private ventures are all flourishing as ever; His high position aids him in his management so clever; And had Hizzoner staid at home, it wouldn't be so sure paid him for 'em, plunkets nine and one per diem.

If now the city'd find that all it owns is gold-venishing. We thought the city had Hizzoner, but by 'n tropection. We see Hizzoner'll get the city, 'ere the next election.

"THERE ARE OTHERS."

THE SILVERLY MOON.
Across the street in the shady park. Where the sparkling dew lies cold. The velvet lawn is soft and smooth. And the flowers are purple and gold.

The slender trees in the breezes bend. To a low and mystic tune. And the green leaves whisper a tale of love. In the light of the silverly moon.

"Come out for a stroll," said the lover-lad. At sunset to the blushing lass. "But clothe yourself in your scarlet robe. For cold are the winds that pass."

He led her down by the flowery beds. Where the pure white lilies bloom. And on either the fragrant roses grow. In the light of the silverly moon.

There were shadows under the tall green trees. Where the limbs were interlaced. So she soiled not when he pressed her hand. And circled her dainty waist.

"I've loved you for many an azure morn." And many a golden moon. Do I read your love in your bright brown eyes.

By the light of the silverly moon?" He gently drew her to his breast. And kissed her curly head. And the bells of the bridal day will ring. As with weeks have passed.

And the crickets under the mossy rock. Will gaily chirp a tune. To the happy lovers as they pass. In the light of the silverly moon.

Col. North, the nitrate king, has bought up one of the estates of the King of the Belgians—castle and domain of Ardenne. The estate covers 16,000 acres, and affords splendid shooting. The colonel will have the King for a neighbor there, as the shooting box of Clergmon, which was a favorite resort of the King's father and crowns a rock within sight of Ardenne, does not form part of the transfer.

It contained all the news of the world, from the Tansvaal to Balloda Slough; lively personals, brilliant paragraphs, red-hot editorials as able as they were caustic, advertisements that shamed description, drives at everybody in the club, from the president down to the last man at the foot of the table, scathing bits of sarcasm, pertinent and pungent local hits and allusions—in short, quite everything of a strictly lively and personal sort that if printed in the daily newspapers would lead to a fund of libel suits, aggravated assaults, and probably many good round horse-whippings. It was all good-natured rattery, however, and as everybody had to trot under the lash, the laugh went round, and if the galled jade winced he failed to indicate that his winners were wrong.

It was a highly successful evening and an event long to be remembered. The next meeting will be held on the day of Washington's birthday, and the event will be the reading of a paper by Judge Knight on "The Presidents of the United States."
